EASTERN NEWS.

[BY EXPRESS TO THE OREGONIAN.]

The Public Schools of New York.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The German mass meeting yesterday evening at Cooper Institute to protest against the proposal in the board of education to expunge instruction in the German tongue from the public schools, was, in point of numbers and enthusiasm, a success. The action of the trustees of the Roman Catholic schools in asking for a share of the benefits of the public schools has been received with surprise by many members of the board of education. Vicar General Quinn of the trustees despaired of obtaining any assistance from the present corporation. The expense of maintaining parochial schools was computed to about $350,000 per annum, exclusive of school buildings, which had already cost between two and three millions. The number of children attending these schools amounts to fully 20,000, assigned to about 50 schools.

The Times on the Gold Ring.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The Times' money article this morning says: The bank statement for Saturday is expected to show a continued locking-up process of the gold ring, but the cause being ascertained, it is not likely to accomplish the object sought. Great efforts will be made to get the rate down to gold rather below the legal limit, by keeping over $10,000,000 gold off the market. The precious metals of the gold clique, continued much longer, will result in increasing largely the supply of gold at this point. Already gold is flowing in from Canada. More is on the way from Canada and Europe. It is estimated that $12,000,000 gold coin have arrived here from San Francisco since January 1st. From all appearances the banks are likely to be glutted in the future, and the gold clique may yet have their sorrow that the time for a gold famine in this country is not nearly at hand.

Mrs. Tyler Curtis' Case.

NEW YORK, March 19.—A letter in the World defends Tyler Curtis against the accusation of having rendered his family here, and says misfortunes rendered him unable either to leave San Francisco or furnish funds, and there was no intention of neglect. Grief, sympathy with his wife and children, who know their brave struggles, caused anxiety. The abandonment story, it is understood, originated with Gregory.

Enquest of Perusing Work on the North Pacific Railway.

NEW YORK, March 19.—A numerously attended meeting of Northern Pacific bondholders was held here yesterday. An encouraging statement from President Cass was received, and, after considerable discussion, the following preamble and resolution were adopted:

WHEREAS, The board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company expresses confidence, confirmed by time and investigation, in the great merits and ultimate success of the Northern Pacific Railroad, in the right extended meaning, of these words; and

WHEREAS, Said board has reported to this meeting that in the judgment the earnest and efficient aid and support of the bondholders is essential to speedy resumption of the work of construction, and that with such aid and support as the bondholders can wisely and safely give, it is possible to proceed with the work of construction at an early day; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the chairman of this meeting appoint a committee of seven to confer with the directors of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, with relation to its management, and the general interests of the bondholders, and that they report at some future meeting.

Further Ice Floods.

PORT HURON, Md., March 19.—The flood here is fearful. Water is from five to ten feet deep in the streets. Nothing like it was ever seen before. Almost the whole town is flooded, and there is great destruction of property. No liver has so far risen, railroad depots full of water. The telegraph operators were forced to abandon the offices last night in boats. At Havre de Grace the ice has gorged against the railroad bridge, and the streets are flooded. The street next to the river above the bridge is completely blocked by ice. The wood and lumber was washed from the wharves.

Indian Murderers Identified.

WICHITA AGENCY, KANSAS, March 19.—At the roll-call of the Cheyenne Indians at Cheyenne agency two of the murderers of Germaine, one of the white girls recently held captive by that tribe, identified four of the Indians who murdered her father and mother. They were Medicine Water, who shot her father; Tall Bear, who killed her mother, and two others. The remaining thirteen of the murderers could not be found. During the roll-call several young Indians fled from camp, and were pursued by the cavalry, but not overtaken. Gen. Sheridan and Agent Miles have discovered that the terms of the order of Stone Calf and his band have not been complied with; more than one hundred young Indians of the band having the best horses and arms of tribe are still on the plains making their way north.

Murder.

VERNON, N. Y., March 19.—Mr. Carruth, editor of the paper published here, was fatally shot this morning by Chas. K. Landis, known as the father of Vineland. The assassin's motive was an article in the paper which Landis thought inferred to him, such which no names were mentioned.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Gross, Marshband & Co., tea and coffee jobbers, have failed.

The Boy Murderer's Case.

BOSTON, March 19.—Petitions of women kindly inviting Sarah Cornell to the Governor for the pardon of Jesse Pomeroy, the boy murderer, to-day a delegation of about 25 women waited on the Governor and urged the execution of the boy as a matter of safety to society.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Republican Caucus Still Fails to Act.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The caucus of Republican Senators on Louisiana affairs resulted in no action, and the conference adjourned till after the adjournment of the Senate to-day.

The caucus committee reported that they were unable to agree on any recommendation as to Louisiana matters, and the whole matter was left open for discussion. A number of propositions were suggested by individual Senators, but none seemed to meet general favor, and it is understood that about half a dozen of those present signified their determination to oppose the adoption by the Senate of any resolutions which may propose to recognize, either directly or indirectly, legally, the so-called Kellogg legislature. Among those senators are, said to be Edmunds, Ferry of Connecticut, Chandler and Frelinghuysen. In the absence of Senators Wadleigh, Wright and Sharon, the Republican majority is so small that if six or seven Republicans vote with Democrats the latter will control the action of the Senate.

Diversion—Who He Is.

HENRY M. Atkinson, nominated commissioner of pensions, is south now to see Senator Tipton, and formerly was register of the land office in Nebraska. He was also one of the commissioners designated to the part of the U. S. to investigate the removal of the Mickapoo Indians from Mexico to Texas.

Nominations and Confirmations.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Senate confirmed the nomination of Joseph Brooks, as postmaster at Little Rock; George H. Keech at Minneapolis; Baker, surveyor general; Minnesota; Isaac C. Parker, U. S. Judge for the western district of Arkansas; David P. Lowe, chief justice of Utah vice McKean removed; Arizona, Edward Hoyt, of Illinois, public moneys of Wyoming land district; Wm. B. Pratt, of Illinois, agent for Indians of Moques Pueblo agency, Arizona.

The President has nominated Henry W. Atkinson, of Nebraska, commissioner of pensions, vice J. H. Baker; ex-Congressman J. D. Ward, of Illinois, U. S. attorney for the northern district of Illinois.

Senator Booth Makes a Sensation.

CHICAGO, March 19.—A Washington Special says: Senator Booth's speech on the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty this afternoon in the Senate was a success, and demonstrated how he made such a success from the stump in his state. He is a very fluent speaker, and reminds one in the case of expression and tendency to romance, of Matt Carpenter and his palmy days. His voice is clear and musical and his action is very graceful. One Republican Senator in speaking of him to-night says he will be the successor of Matt Carpenter in capturing the galleries. Whenever he rises to address the Senate in open session he will be sure of a good audience. He showed himself well calculated to take a position as a leader in the Independent wing of the house. He is just the style of man to become very popular, and as he has a good record there is no knowing to what height he may attain in the political field of the East.

Waiting Orders.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Passed Assistant Engineer John Alexander, from the naval rendezvous at San Francisco, has been placed on waiting orders.

SENATE—EXTRA SESSION.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—In the Senate the resolution submitted by Boutwell on Tuesday, authorizing a special committee to be appointed to inquire into the several branches of the civil service with a view to the reorganization of the several departments thereof, was during the recess and send for persons, papers, etc., was adopted and the Senate went into executive session.

TRANSATLANTIC CABLE.

Perfumery Establishment Burned.

LONDON, March 19.—The perfume manufactory of Eugene Rimmil, 96 Strand, with several adjoining buildings, was destroyed by fire this morning.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

Cross-Examination of Halliday.

NEW YORK, March 19.—In the Beecher trial this morning the cross-examination of Halliday was resumed. He testified that after Wilbur's charges against Tilton were presented to the committee in complete form, he didn't give them any advice with regard to them. He didn't see them. Holland not speak to Mrs. Bradshaw about her appearing as a witness before the committee, but she spoke to him on the subject. He was asked what she said, but Evarts objected on the ground that Beecher was not present at the conversation, and the court sustained the objection. Wilbur continued: I only told the committee what Mrs. Bradshaw told me. Think I said that Mrs. Bradshaw would not appear before them. I did not know Mrs. Tilton. Had been to see Mrs. Bradshaw. I think I stated to the committee that Mrs. Bradshaw had seen Mrs. Tilton, and that she had said to me that she could not not would not appear before the committee. Told the committee this because Mrs. Bradshaw told me that. I told the committee Mrs. Bradshaw told me that she would not add one thing to those Elizabeth Richby suffered by appearing against her, and that Mrs. Tilton had said to her: "I invite no one to you appear against me." I made no response whatever, and Mrs. Bradshaw had said she would write to the committee and tell them that she would not appear as a witness. I had some correspondence with Mrs. Bradshaw about this time.

Witness was next questioned at length with reference to his occupation, etc., before becoming assistant pastor of Plymouth church, it appearing from his answers that he had been engaged in various pursuits, but he was unable to remember any disreputable transactions connected with any of them, as hinted at in the questions of Fullerton.

At the conclusion of Halliday's examination, the defense called Elizabeth A. Turner ("Bessie Turner").

She testified to entering Tilton's family in 1864, and living there ten years, and always being treated as one of the family. Tilton always treated her kindly, and used to kiss her and take her in his lap as he did his own children. She testified to Mrs. Tilton's affectionate treatment of everybody, especially her husband. When witness left Mrs. Tilton was very kind to his wife, but Mrs. Tilton's love was a visible change. He exhibited, in his moods, sometimes making people uncomfortable. His manner to his wife was often rough. He found fault with the table. Once at a woman's rights meeting at his house she objected to his wife's standing by him, saying the contrast was too great. Tilton was in the habit of getting up and changing the pictures on the walls attired in his night clothes. He was also in the habit of trying all the beds in the house before he retired, to see which he preferred to remain in. Witness remembered on one occasion changing her bed twice, as she said he wanted to ascertain which bed was softest. Mrs. Tilton followed several times, but did not undress. At 7:30 o'clock this morning he said "Farewell to sleep on earth." A priest came about half-past eight and talked with him alone a short time; then his relatives were admitted. Breakfast was served at a quarter past nine. Vasquez ate sparingly. He evidently controlled his nerves by a strong effort of will. At a quarter past twelve Vasquez expressed a desire to bid farewell to the officers and members of the press present. At the close of the interview he sank in a chair apparently exhausted, and he was left alone with the priest. At half-past one the rope was adjusted to the beam by J. H. Fulton, recently mate of the ship Sontag. About the same time the death warrant was read to Vasquez in his cell, to which he listened with fortitude. Then the deputy sheriff had handcuffed Vasquez handed him a piece of paper on which was written: "I am destined to die, and I hope that God will have mercy on my soul." The procession then marched to the scaffold, upon reaching which the priest began the recital of the litany, and prayers for the dead, and deputies Winchell and Sellman strapped the legs and arms of the culprit. A white shroud was then drawn over his body, the rope placed about his neck, and with the prayers of the priest echoing in his ears, the doomed man dropped beneath the platform, dying without a struggle. He maintained his composure to the last. Everything was quiet and orderly. Sheriff Adams has signified his intention to give the body to his relatives for interment in the Catholic cemetery at Santa Clara.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

THE GRAVEYARD OF CONGRESSIONAL ORATORY—NOBODY READS IT — THE IDEA CONGRESSMEN HAVE OF THE STUPIDITY OF THE PUBLIC.

The anxiety of congressmen that they shall be correctly represented in the Record is farcical. The oldest and shrewdest of them have an abiding faith in the potency of the Record. They fancy it is sent broadcast over the land, and that their constituents break frantically for its sprightly pages each day, ere the matutinal toast is crunched or the matutinal coffee sipped.

I desire this portion of this letter inserted with my remarks in the Record, that I may be understood exactly at home," says grave Judge Hoar. He does not seem to know that probably not a dozen copies of that vivacious hebdomadal find their way to Massachusetts, and that not a solitary number turns up in Concord once a month.

Men like Beck, Sabarz, Willard, Gordon and others equally sagacious, exhibit the same queer lunacy in regard to the Record. A theory of the Stoics was that every man has at least one streak of insanity in his mental make-up. The streak in the better class of congressmen is their faith in the mysterious sacredness of this ponderous daily. Opponents may scarify, and wicked independent newspapers misrepresent them year in and year out. But so long as their constituents are buried in the holy print of the Record, calumny is toothless and immortality a serene certainty.

Probably not three citizens out of every thousand know there exists such a publication as the Record. Probably two out of those three have a very indistinct idea of what it is, imagining it, in a vaguely indifferent way, to be either a hand-bill or some sort of a Congressional tally-book.

A western college professor—a gentleman of travel, broad education, and thoroughly familiar with the political questions of this country and most of Europe—said to me, while visiting here recently, "By-the-way, what is the best daily paper in Washington, the Record, I suppose?" That same afternoon I heard a great western member, serving his first and last term, bewail a typographical error in the precious publication in question. "It will make me ridiculous in the eyes of the whole country," he groaned.

The absurdity of the Record is its utter inaccuracy. It is a lying transcript of debate, deformed to suit the ideas of all the members, who go over the proofs and fix up their remarks as they meant them to be, not as they were. The daily press accounts are the only reliable records of what is actually said and done in Congress.—Gideon in the Chicago Times.

The large decrease in the public debt, as shown by the debt statement for the past month, is probably attributable to heavy receipts from internal revenue collection, caused by the agitation of the new tax and revenue bill. When the bill was under discussion in the House, and it was thought the stock of whisky on hand and in bond would be taxed, heavy dealers in whisky took out of bonded warehouses nearly one-fourth of the stock in bond, to avert payment of the anticipated tax.

It is said that kerosene and rats have no affection for each other. The kerosene is not particularly sensitive, but the rats are, and refuse to live in the same cellar or shed where kerosene is kept. A great quantity of kerosene is not necessary, as they only require a steady odor of it for a brief season to be looking up another boarding house.

There wasn't a man around this office struck oil in the Kentucky lottery.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Overhauling a Corrupt Officer.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The finance committee of the board of supervisors held a meeting last evening to reopen investigation into the accounts of the late license collector Buckley; present, Elberts, Ofenstein and Robertson, of the committee, and Supervisor Block, of the committee on license and orders.

The latter testified that alterations were discovered on the cash book by which 100 Chinese licenses at $10 each were not carried into the footings and not paid into the treasury. Emil Niemier, ex-deputy license collector, testified that the alterations mentioned were ordered by Buckley. Buckley received the money but did not pay it over. Witness mentioned a great number of similar transactions, and testified to Buckley's offering him until Hellreigel, another deputy, $500 each to leave the country. Hellreigel being sworn corroborated Niemier's testimony, and thought under Buckley's administration the city was swindled out of between $50,000 and $100,000 a year. He detailed a great number of instances in which licenses to large amounts had been collected and never accounted for. The committee adjourned.

Execution of Vasquez.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The execution of Vasquez took place to-day at San Jose. On Wednesday evening he was in a very communicative mood, and conversed at length; his language taking the shape of an address to the public and his friends. He denied, as before, that he had been guilty of the murder charged at Trespinos, or Livs and Gonzales. Last night he was again interviewed. During the conversation his coffin arrived from the undertaker. He wished to see it, and it was brought in. On examining it he remarked, "That's way up." The conversation then turned upon other subjects. Everything was quiet and orderly around the jail last night. Guards were stationed on the roof and within doors. Vasquez retired about 9 o'clock, but slept very little. He was very restless; rose and walked around the corridor, smoking and conversing. He threw himself on the bed several times, but did not undress. At 7:30 o'clock this morning he said "Farewell to sleep on earth." A priest came about half-past eight and talked with him alone a short time; then his relatives were admitted. Breakfast was served at a quarter past nine. Vasquez ate sparingly. It is said that kerosene and rats have no affection for each other. The kerosene is not particularly sensitive, but the rats are, and refuse to live in the same cellar or shed where kerosene is kept. A great quantity of kerosene is not necessary, as they only require a steady odor of it for a brief season to be looking up another boarding house.

There wasn't a man around this office struck oil in the Kentucky lottery.

THE CIVIL SERVICE OF ENGLAND.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

Until 1853, political victors in England claimed and got their spoils. It was from a Government of aristocrats, ruling a disfranchised Democracy, that the Democrats got their dogma which Jackson put in practice, to the utter corruption of our civil service and the degradation of our politics. Appointments to the English civil service were matters of patronage, and services were paid for according to the power of the patron rather than the capacity of the appointee. The latter rule holds good, in a great measure, of our postmasters now, as Mr. Jewell has recently bravely said. In 1853, Sir Stafford Norcote and Sir Charles Trevelyan prepared a plan for reform, which was adopted. In 1855 a civil service commission was appointed, which has since continued in power. It adopted a system of limited competition. Different schemes of examination were prepared for the different departments. The clerkships and salaries were graded. The limitations on competition were abolished by a recent order in council which made success in examinations the only test for employment.

At present, there are two great sets of clerks and a mass of subordinates called "writers," whose work is merely mechanical, and who are an ungraded, unsatisfactory body, with ill-defined tenure of office and shifting pay. They seem to be ignored in the plan. The examination for grade No. 2 of clerkships is comparatively easy, but the pay and work of the clerks thus appointed is often as high as that of clerks in grade No. 1, who have to pass a severe examination beyond the capacity of most men who have not had a liberal education. Contestants get office in the order in which they pass. The "staff" of each department, which consists of the clerks nearest the head, is usually appointed by the head, without examination, and either from his subordinate clerks or from persons outside the office.

The British civil service commission has just submitted an important report which reserves attention here, as well as that the present system is condemned in certain respects. There are four radical defects in it. First, the checks upon the admission of unfit persons to the civil service are not sufficient. Second, promotion depends upon seniority not merit, and "this, not jobbery, is the real evil of the service." Third, there is confusion and injustice in the attempted systematization of work and pay. Fourth, the heads of Departments can neither appoint nor dismiss the men for whom they are responsible. The system has been so unsatisfactory that its evasion has become a system.

A new plan is now proposed. All the clerks (including the "writers," but excluding the "staff") are to be divided into two great grades, which will be subdivided in turn. The second grade would be recruited substantially as it is now, except that the commission is to have discretion to appoint any person who passes the examination, whether his marks were highest or not. The general rule, however, will still be to appoint in order of merit. Candidates for the first grade would have to pass both a preliminary and a final examination. Those who were successful in the latter would be placed in alphabetical order on a list. They would still have no claim to an appointment, but the head of any department in which a vacancy occurred would select any one of the three appointees would serve one year on probation. The pay of the second grade would begin at £80 (equal, in purchasing power, to $800 here), and would rise to £100. In the first grade, the pay would rise from £100 to £600. The staff appointments would pay still better, and would be awarded by the heads of departments as they are now. This system is thus a combination of competition and patronage, each acting as a check upon the other. Competition is to prove intellectual capacity, and patronage is to decide the points which an examination cannot test.

The English reviews on the 13th ult., all devote leading articles to the new plan, and all take different views of it and of its one defect, which is intended to supersede. The Saturday Review is true to its conservative or Bourbon politics. The creed of its party is not what is, is good," but "what was, is good." It therefore declares that "nothing can be more absurd, hopeless and intolerable than the present system," and that the more patronage there is, the better. The Pall Mall indorses the new plan as an improvement of the old, but does not regard the latter as very bad. The Spectator declares that the nation will not suffer any restriction on open competition, because every middle-class family in England and every family in Scotland has found it a help in providing for children. "The notion of securing maintenance to be won by headwork without asking anybody for anything has entered into the very soul of Paterfamilias," says the Spectator, "and he will not give it up without a struggle from which, unless the case made out is unanswerable, any political party would shrink." The enfranchised Democracy are now filling the civil service by force of brain-power, and do not wish to go back to begging the aristocracy to give their sons a chance in life.

RIGHT OF WAY TO RAILROADS.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The following is the text of the bill granting to railroads the right of way through the public lands of the United States, and which awaits the President's signature to become a law:

Be it enacted, etc., That the right of way through the public lands is hereby granted to any railroad company duly organized under the laws of any State or Territory, except the District of Columbia, or by the Congress of the United States, which shall have filed with the Secretary of the Interior a copy of its articles of incorporation and due proofs of its organization under the same, the extent of 100 feet on each side of the central line of said road; also, the right to take from the public lands adjacent to the line of said road, material, earth, stone and timber necessary for the construction of said railroad; also, ground adjacent to such right-of-way for station buildings, depots, machine shops, side tracks, turnouts and water stations, not exceeding in amount twenty acres for each station, to the extent of one station for each ten miles of its road.

Sec. 2. That any railroad company whose right of way, or whose track or road-bed upon such right of way, passes through any canyon, pass or defile, shall not prevent any other railroad company from the use and occupancy of the said canyon, pass or defile for the purposes of this act. Where two roads in common with the road first located, or the crossing of other railroads at grade, and the location of such right of way through any canyon, pass or defile shall not cause the disuse of any wagon road or other public highway now located thereon, nor prevent the location through the same of any such wagon road or highway where such road or highway may be necessary for the public accommodation; and where any change in the location of such wagon road is necessary to permit the passage of such railroad through any canyon, pass or defile, said railroad company shall, before entering upon the ground occupied by such wagon road, cause the same to be reconstructed at its own expense in the most favorable location, and in as perfect a manner as the original road. Provided, that such expenses shall be equitably divided between any number of railroad companies occupying and using the same canyon, pass or defile.

Sec. 3. That the legislature of the proper territory may provide for the manner in which private lands and possessory claims on the public lands of the United States may be condemned and where such provision shall not have been made, such condemnation may be made in accordance with section 3 of the Act entitled "An Act to aid in the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from the Missouri river to the Pacific ocean, and to secure to the Government the use of the same for postal, military and other purposes, approved July 1, 1862," approved July 2, 1864.

Sec. 4. That any railroad company desiring to secure the benefits of this act shall, within twelve months after the location of, any section of twenty miles of road, if the same be on surveyed lands, and if upon unsurveyed lands, within eighteen months after the survey thereof by the United States, file with the register of the land office, for the district where such land is located, a profile of its road, and upon approval thereof by the Secretary of the Interior, the same shall be noted upon the plats in said office, and thereafter all such lands over which such right of way shall pass, shall be disposed of subject to such right of way; provided that if any section of said road shall not be completed within five years after the location of said section, the rights herein granted shall be forfeited to any such uncompleted section of said road.

Sec. 5. That this act shall not apply to any lands within the limits of any military park, or Indian reservation, or other lands specially reserved from sale, unless such right of way shall be provided for by treaty stipulation or by act of Congress hereto fore passed.

Sec. 6. That Congress hereby reserves the right at any time to alter, amend or repeal this act or any part thereof.

OREGON.

Union county calls for plans for a new court house to cost not more than $6,000.

Parties in the vicinity of Beaverton have shipped on the cars 2,400 bushels of onions of last year's crop.

The rabbits are destroying a good many apple trees in Union and Baker counties by gnawing the bark off.

James March got caught in the machinery of the flouring mill at Lafayette last week, and came near losing his life.

The trustees of Pacific University and Tualatin Academy are making an effort to keep Prof. Condon at the Grove.

Rev. E. Walker sold 55 acres of land from the northwest side of his farm, near Forest Grove, recently, for $31 per acre.

The Virtue mine of Baker county recently sent to San Francisco a bar of bullion valued at $6,776, being the proceeds of 200 tons of ore.

It is rumored that a ledge, rich in some kind of metal, has been struck by certain parties in the mountains west of Dilley. So says the Independent.

Mrs. F. A. Wallace, of LaGrande, met with a very painful accident, a few days ago, by slipping on the ice, causing the fracture of one of the bones of the ankle.

J. L. Thomas, G. W. C. R. of the Golden Rule temperance society, organized a lodge at Cornelius, Wednesday evening of last week, with 23 charter members.

On the 10th of March Miss Laura Spencer forwarded $15 by Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express to the Nebraska and Kansas sufferers, which she collected from citizens of Cornelius.

The citizens of School District No. 82, in Marion county, have let out a contract to Mr. Bailey, through their directors, for the building of a good schoolhouse at Parkerville this season.

We take the following from a Texas paper of Feb. 22d: "We are told that Dewees, Milton and others are now engaged gathering cattle at the Alamito and other places for the purpose of making a drive of about 50,000 head to Montana in April, to the States, perhaps of Oregon and Nebraska."

The Hillsboro Independent says: "Last week Mr. Stormont presented Dr. Bailey with the head of a lamb wonderfully monstrous. Its jaws have no articulation, it has no nostrils, and its two eyes are joined in one eye hole, which is situated in the center of the forehead, and are so closely united that they look like one eye.

A. C. Smith stole a horse near Brownsville a short time since, was arrested, tried before a justice of the peace and acquitted. Two days afterward the sheriff was sent after him, and without any effort to make his escape he came to Albany with the sheriff, and on being asked by the judge if he desired counsel, he replied no; that he was guilty, and needed no lawyer.

A resident of Cove, Union county, recently gave a candy pulling, rag-cutting and wood-chopping party, and the LaGrande Sentinel says: "Young Cove, boodlums, who had not been known to cut a stick of wood at home for a year, actually cut a cord that day. It is estimated that the boys cut seven cords of wood. The girls cut forty-nine p

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 20, 1875.

THE BULLETIN GETS STILL LOWER IN THE MANUFACTURE OF TELEGRAMS.

Yesterday we took occasion to show up, somewhat in detail, the remarkable manner in which the Bulletin's "Telegrams" are manufactured. We mentioned then only the taking of the OREGONIAN's dispatches and publishing them in the next day's Bulletin as telegrams to that paper, and with the dates changed to make them appear to be new dispatches. That would seem at first blush to be about as low a depth as it would be possible to reach in the way of dishonorable journalism. To steal another paper's dispatches and publish them as its own, is, in a moral and business point of view, exactly on a par with the larceny of any other species of property; and then to alter them so as to make them misrepresent the events they purport to be accounts of, and thus deceive and swindle the pilferer's own subscribers, adds to the theft an offense not materially different in morals from forging a note or other commercial document and disposing of it for money to a particular friend. But the managers of the Bulletin have demonstrated the unparalleled fertility of their ingenuity in the invention of new and improved ways of disgracing the calling of journalism. In yesterday's Bulletin, in addition to nearly a column and a half of dispatches which had been published the day before in the OREGONIAN, all paraded as special telegrams to the Bulletin, some of them having the dates changed, and others retaining the dates as published by this paper, there appeared as a London dispatch of the 18th to the Bulletin, John Mitchel's speech on his second election to Parliament, whereas, in fact, the speech was never telegraphed to the Bulletin, or any other paper in Oregon, and instead of being an event of the 18th inst., was more than a week old, and had been brought to Portland, by mail, in the newspapers.

In the same number of the Bulletin there appeared, as a special of March 18th to that paper, an account of Caleb Cushing's presenting his credentials as Minister to the Court of Spain. The fact is, that identical dispatch was telegraphed to the San Francisco papers on the 11th of March, seven days earlier than the date the Bulletin sets to it, and reaching Portland, by mail, on the 17th instant, was published in the OREGONIAN of the 18th, not as a telegraphic dispatch, and never appeared in the Bulletin till the 19th, when it came out as a special telegram to the Bulletin from Europe, by Atlantic Cable, dated the 18th of March.

Again, in the Bulletin of yesterday, March 19th, appeared as a Chicago telegram of the 18th, an account of the visit of Shacknasty Jim and other Modocs to the President at Washington. That visit took place on the 11th of March, not the 18th, was telegraphed to the San Francisco Chronicle, and was published in that paper on the 12th; the Chronicle containing it reached Portland on the 18th, and the item was copied into the Bulletin of the 19th (where it appeared as a special dispatch), word for word, except that the date was altered from the 11th to the 18th of March.

The specifications we make can be verified by any person who doubts their entire correctness, by comparing the papers referred to, all of which are accessible to any one. This is not a case in which their can be any uncertainty arising from differences of statement among different people, for it does not depend on verbal statements. The evidence is documentary. Just compare the papers referred to, and if we are found to have made any misstatement we shall be glad to correct it. But we have made none such. The proof is conclusive, and denial is impossible.

Now if there is any person, no matter how closely he may be allied to the ring of which the Portland Bulletin is the organ, who will have the hardihood to assert that these thefts and forgeries admit of justification, excuse or palliation, or that they are less disreputable than any other species of larceny and swindling, we hope that individual will come to the front and let himself be known to the business community. A merchant or manufacturer or farmer who should attempt to push himself along by practices approaching in moral turpitude those by which the Bulletin attempts every day to make its readers believe it receives a large amount of telegraphic news, would stand no better before the business world than a common shop-lifter. As the San Francisco Bulletin well remarks on this subject, the talent that can succeed in such practices is the talent of "Three-fingered Jack."

THE WINNEMUCCA RAILWAY.

As will be seen by the telegrams this morning, a number of gentlemen whose names have always been more or less prominently associated with the Winnemucca railway project, were in consultation on the subject at San Francisco yesterday. It has been supposed here that certain railway men of California felt a lively interest in the enterprise, and it is possible this consultation may look to enlisting them actively in the work. At all events the construction of the road is a matter of so much importance to the State, that no little interest will be felt to know the result of the consultation. Everybody would rejoice to hear that arrangements were making for the early commencement and vigorous prosecution of the great enterprise which would at once add so greatly to the wealth of this State, and aid so much in firmly establishing the prosperity of the State.

WE RISE TO EXPLAIN.

The Bulletin is "agitating" again on the subject of Bill Watkinds. If that is a way Mr. Dolph has of trying his slander suit, we have no objection to offer to it. When Dolph and Watkinds get into a fight we have nothing to say. We have no judge in that engagement. But we venture to suggest, and sincerely hope we may not give offense by doing so—that this illegitimate use of a newspaper to work up the case, whether it is at Mr. Dolph's instance or without his knowledge, will hardly add anything to his verdict, or increase the probabilities of there being a verdict for him. As to the Bulletin's remark that the OREGONIAN is friendly to Watkinds, we have only to reply that we have not directly or indirectly indicated any preference between these worthies. If we felt any particular friendship for one or the other, we should not feel justified in giving expression to that feeling while the suit is pending. We leave that style of journalism to the Bulletin, with the hope that it, too, may some day see the impropriety of its present course and reform. We have published Watkind's cards on the subject, as advertisements, at advertising rates, and Dolph's without charge. If Mr. Dolph thinks that is showing Watkinds particular favor, we shall not call in question his right to complain of it through the Bulletin; but we assure him that such an impression is wholly without foundation.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

CONGRESS IN ARTICULO MORTIS—INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS—THE TREMENDOUS INFLUENCE OF SENATOR HIPPLE ILLUSTRATED IN TWO INSTANCES—SPEAKER BLAINE'S OVATION—PERSONAL NOTES.

WASHINGTON, March 4, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The XLIVth Congress is in the article of death. Such confusion as reigned in the House last night, from 8 o'clock till this morning at 8, was never rivalled, even in a Joss house during a religious festival. I venture to say that scores of bills slipped through without a man being aware of the fact, save the member making the motion. But they were all on the calendar, and had received previously the approval of some one of the committees, so that there was nothing very outrageous done, most likely.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL

Has become a law. The Senate amended it to the extent of $600,000. The item for the Great Kanawha was increased $100,000, and Tennessee river $210,000. There were amendments put in by the committee on transportation, and on the preliminary appropriations to construct cheap transportation routes for the products of the Mississippi valley to the sea. They were also recommended in rather an indefinite way by the President in his last annual message. The Upper Columbia got $35,000; the Wallamet and Lower Columbia got $25,000; the Upper Wallamet, $20,000. These were nearly the exact sums recommended by the engineer corps, except the Upper Columbia, where $5,000 more were recommended.

Capt Eads got his jetty bill through, but in an amended form. Instead of the Southwest pass it is the south pass that is to be deepened, and instead of $8,000,000 he is to get $5,250,000 when he has increased the depth from 8 feet to 20. His project received a strong vote in both Houses—in the Senate seven to one, and in the House there was no organized opposition.

Messrs. Mitchell and Kelly worked hard to get an appropriation for the Coquille and Nehalem rivers and for the Yamhill, and although they were adopted in committee of the whole in the Senate, the joint conference committee struck them off.

PORTLAND CUSTOM HOUSE.

Mr. Mitchell attempted to get $40,000 for furnishing, etc., the Portland custom house, but not having been recommended by the committee on appropriations, Sargent, of California, remorselessly refused to entertain the idea, but moved to lay the amendment on the table which was done.

SPEAKER BLAINE'S OVATION.

In the last hours of the session, on motion of Clarkson Potter (Dem.), of New York, seconded by W. E. Niblack (Dem.), of Indiana, a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered to James G. Blaine, Speaker of the House. When we remember that this session has been one of the most exciting ever known, and has resulted in more acrimonious political debates than in any previous Congress, it was a compliment of more than ordinary meaning to that gentleman. When he had concluded his parting address there was a burst of tumultuous applause in which the Democrats tried to excel the Republicans, and this was kept up for many minutes.

The speaker, who had vacated his chair, and was seated at the clerk's desk, sat bowing his acknowledgements, the tears coursing down his manly face. It was a sight said to have never been witnessed before in that hall, and it may be many a day before its like is seen again. Blaine is nearly the idol of the members of both parties. For quickness to discover the right, for unfailing courtesy, a judgment that never errs, and for personal popularity, he has had no man to approach him since Harry Clay ruled the House, which was then not nearly so large or tumultuous a body. When the applause had subsided, the whole audience, members and spectators, rushed to his place to bid him farewell. Mr. Speaker Blaine has been re-elected to the Forty-fourth Congress, over which a Democrat will preside, but he can afford to retire to his seat as a member of the body, after such an endorsement of his course for the last six years. I append his farewell speech. [Having before published the handsome address of the speaker, we omit it now.—EDITOR OREGONIAN.]

THE SENATE.

The extra session of the Senate will convene to-morrow, when the new senators will take their seats. All are here except Booth of California. Christiancy, who succeeds Chandler, and McMillen, who is the successor of Ramsey, and Angus Cameron, in place of Carpenter, are all expected to act with the Republicans. The two former were chief justices of their respective States when elected, and are honest, able men. Cameron is said to be a lawyer of good abilities, but hardly the equal of Matt Carpenter.

PERSONAL.

Solomon Hirsch, Esq., State senator, was here but has returned to New York to complete his purchase of a large stock of dry goods. While in Washington he interviewed a number of distinguished men, among the rest the Speaker of the House.

Mr. Bush, of Salem, has been also sojourning in Washington for a time.

Ben Holladay has bought a handsome residence for $55,000, and will move into it in a few days. It is on K street and was formerly owned by Philp, the wealthy book seller.

Dr. Towler, of your town, will soon receive, so it is rumored, a position in the pay department, under the act increasing the number of paymasters. SEMI-OCCASIONAL.

BEARING STATE BONDS.

SALEM, March 19, 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The following appeared in the Salem Mercury of to-day:

SALEM, March 15, 1875.

EDITOR MERCURY—Dear Sir: I see that the OREGONIAN has a telegram from Salem that the State Treasurer has repudiated the Modoc war bonds, etc. Does not this item come from some one who is trying to depreciate the bonds so as to buy them up?

The refusal of the State Treasurer to pay the interest on the above named bonds, under the circumstances set forth in the telegram referred to, would indicate an attempt to "bear" the market by somebody; but whether the author of the telegram, which simply stated the fact, or the Treasurer, who perpetrated the act, let a discriminating public judge. BETA.

The cool way in which the destinies of nations are discussed from the standpoint of matrimonial alliances among their tolerated rulers must seem ridiculous to American free men. The question of the union of the young Napoleon with the remaining Danish Princess is mooted with a gravity absolutely farcical. It is argued that to wed him to this charming young lady is to secure him the French throne at once, as he would then be allied to the Imperial family of Russia, and own for brothers-in-law the heirs apparent of the Russian and British thrones. By a similar marriage contract, therefore, are the millions of subjects of the three nations to be bound. Oceans of blood and the destinies of Europe are to depend upon this little arrangement. Republicanism in Europe cannot have made much advance when the will of the midgets like these is made the will of hundreds of millions.

MARRIED:

Premium Carriage Factory

E. SMITH,

CARRIAGE MAKER,

Cor. Jefferson and Front Streets,

PORTLAND, OREGON,

Is now making First-Class EXPRESS WAGONS, BUGGIES and CARRIAGES of all kinds.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

At the Oregon State Fair, recently held at Salem, Mr. E. Smith was awarded the First Premium on an Open and also on a Top Buggy. The latter was built from a design published in the June number of The Carriage Monthly, styled "Monitor Piano-Box Buggy," and elicited much admiration.—The Philadelphia Carriage Monthly.

Mr. E. Smith, of Portland, has on exhibition at the State Fair two Buggies, both Open and Top, and certainly exhibit as good workmanship as can be found on the Coast, while several very important improvements have been added, especially in rendering the same so as not to weaken the axles, by putting the bolts through the same. The commendable enterprise that Mr. Smith has displayed, we understand, is being amply rewarded in our city. He will be awarded the first Premium.—Oregonian.

Mr. E. Smith, Carriage Maker, of Portland, exhibited one Open and one Covered Buggy upon the Fair Grounds, which deserve special mention. These Carriages are especially light and durable, and those in need of such a purchase, and who isn't—should call upon him before purchasing elsewhere. Of course Mr. Smith bore off the blue ribbons.—New Northwest.

Mr. E. Smith, Carriage Maker, corner of Front and Jefferson streets, took two Premiums at the State Fair for First-Class Buggies. This speaks well of his work, and is a credit to Portland.—Pacific Christian Advocate.

HOME MANUFACTURE.—Mr. E. Smith, Carriage Maker, of this city, has some splendid Vehicles on exhibition at the Fair.—Temperance Star.

Mr. Steglich was a passenger on the Oriflamme, which arrived at San Francisco Wednesday. He has been a resident of this city for quite a number of years and was a member of the German Aid Society, the Masonic Order and Druids. He leaves a daughter aged about 8 years, in this city, to mourn his loss. Deceased had gone on a trip to California for his health.

NEW CUPOLA.—Smith Bros. are now engaged in building a new cupola for their foundry, which will be ready for service in about two weeks. The stack, made of plate iron, will be about 30 feet high, and a little over four feet in diameter. Around on the inside of the stack, which the thickness of about four inches, fire brick will be placed to withstand the intense degree of heat. When the new cupola is finished, with the aid of the old one, a six ton casting can easily be run.

MILL PURCHASED.—Mr. Baily, of McMinnville, Yamhill county, has recently purchased the machinery belonging to Capt. S. S. Douglass, and proposes to put it up at that place a few weeks. This machinery was formerly used by Capt. Douglass in running a portable sawmill five or six miles back in the timber east of this city. Yesterday afternoon the machinery was sent to Oregon City, and from thence will be shipped by steamer to McMinnville.

TOWN AND GOWN.—Rev. Mr. Bentley, of the Taylor-street M. E. church, will make his debut as a lecturer in Portland, on next Wednesday evening. Inasmuch as there will be a grand rush for seats on the opening night of the new theater, the suggestion has been made by several persons, that it would be an excellent idea to dispose of at auction a number of the most desirable seats in the house.

FIRE MATTERS.

But one fire this month, that last Sunday morning, on Pine street—a trifling affair.

The City Council considered some very important matters in relation to fire department affairs, which will be found in last Thursday's OREGONIAN.

Engineer McMullen, of 4's, has in operation an alarm clock of his own invention, which is so arranged that the gas can be extinguished at any time desired. It is operated similar to an alarm clock.

The flags of the department were at half-mast yesterday in respect to the late August Staeglich, who was a member of Multnomah Fire Company. That company has lost two of its members by death, Willard A. Holbrook being the other, within the past thirty days.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

If you want any repairs or new gas and water fittings, call on John Donnerberg, who will attend to you promptly. He has some new and elegant styles in gas fixtures.

Traver, the indefatigable, is still pushing ahead with the "New Home" and "Home Shuttle" sewing machines. The sale of these machines have been very large, which is evidence of their value.

FOR THE LADIES.

Scotch and Irish plaids are on the decline.

Very wide jet band bracelets are quite fashionable.

The bustle begins to assume old-time proportions.

When it comes to point lace all women can see the point.

The newest bonnets have long streamers down the back.

Purple is becoming again one of the most popular of colors.

Hem stitched handkerchiefs have a center two inches square.

Black silks were never so ridiculously cheap" as at present.

Porcelain jewelry is in vogue. The ear rings are especially pretty.

In New York the snow storm revived the fashion of colored hose.

Roman sash ribbon is to be used for trimming black silk reception dresses. They say the effect produced is very fine.

"Fanny" says the one great wish of her heart is, that she may live to see what will be the fashions in bonnets in 1900.

Ladies are once more wearing the old-fashioned watch chains of fine gold, to go around the neck and fasten in the belt.

Ladies wear on promenade, with the English double-breasted walking jacket, a white silk scarf tied about the neck and tucked in underneath the revers.

Some of the prettiest evening dresses are of white muslin, embroidered. They are soft, airy and graceful-looking, and particularly appropriate for young girls.

Collars are still worn standing with ends slightly broken in front. Cuffs are very large and cut round at the top; an exact imitation of the gentlemen's style.

Laced kid gloves are taking the place of buttoned to some extent. The argument of the ladies is that the former make the hand look much smaller and of beautiful shape.

Fruits do not ornament the bonnet of the period any more, and we are heartily glad of it, for those glassy grapes and shabby berries were horrible-looking ornaments indeed.

The difference between the sexes may be stated thus: A man gives forty cents for a twenty-five cent thing he wants, and a woman gives twenty-five cents for a forty-cent she does not want.

Dr. Wistar's Wild Cherry Balsam.—This Balsamic compound has become a home institution. Let all who suffer, and have in vain attempted to get their coughs, colds, bronchial or pulmonary complaints, make use of this unequaled remedy. It can be relied upon, the mass of testimony that has been published since its introduction, being ample proof of its efficacy.

A FRIGHTFUL CHORUS.

Nothing strikes so unpleasantly upon the ear of an affectionate parent as the wheezing, snuffling, coughing, and hoarse voices of a family of children laboring under bad colds. A chorus of this dismal kind is kept up in some households the winter through, simply because the father and mother are either ignorant of the means of cure or are guilty of gross neglect. HALE'S HONEY OF HOREHOUND AND TAR will establish quiet in three days. No cough or cold can resist its soothing influence.

PIKE'S TOOTH-ACHE DROPS—Cure in one minute.

JOHN YOUNG BROWN, OF KENTUCKY.

MR. HALE, OF NEW YORK, CORRECTS WHAT HE CALLS THE INJUSTICE TO MR. BROWN IN THE RESOLUTION OF CENSURE.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Mr. Hale, of New York, who has not been able to attend the sittings of the House for the past four weeks on account of illness, wrote to-day to Mr. Crittenden, of Missouri, expressing his regret that his illness had prevented him from taking any part in correcting the injustice which he is now fully convinced was done to Mr. Brown, of Kentucky in the resolution of censure moved by himself and adopted by the House in the earlier part of the session. He repeats his conviction, that so far as that resolution imputed to Mr. Brown any intention of prevarication and double dealing in his response to the Speaker, himself, and a majority of the House had been misled, and had done injustice to Mr. Brown. He adds: "A careful examination of the record since, qualifying it by my own distinct recollection satisfied me that I did a great wrong to Mr. Brown in imputing this intent to him; and that there was nothing in response to the Speaker inconsistent with his entire good faith, or with the integrity of an upright honorable man. I shall never hesitate to express freely the conviction that I have above expressed to you, and if anything contained in this letter will, in your judgment, be of service to Mr. Brown, I beg you to consider the letter entirely at your service for any use whatever that you or other friends of Mr. Brown may think proper to make of it."

Twelve persons stopped at a hotel over night. On asking their bill the next morning, they found it to be $12. The old men paid $4 each, the old women paid $2 each, the young men 50 cents each, and the young women paid 25 cents each. How many old men, how many old women, how many young men, and how many young women were there traveling in this crowd?

The Multiplication of Diseases.

Diseases multiply. One begets another. A tainting indisposition may, therefore, originate a complication of dangerous maladies. Indigestion begets far more formidable diseases: a multitude of ailments are traceable to constipation: fever and ague imbrues the entire nervous system, and is therefore the source of the protean ailments which affect that portion of the human organism. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, however, whether resorted to at the inception of those disorders of the stomach, bowels or liver, which give birth to the majority of diseases and disabilities, or taken when they have ripened into formidable maturity, are alike powerful to cure. The process of recovery is, of course, longer when the malady has gained headway, but is none the less certain. Dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, kidney complaints and intermittent fever, invariably yield to the operation of the great alterative and invigorant.

Of One Number Alone of the Justly Celebrated

SPENCERIAN

Double-Elastic

STEEL PENS

Were sold in 1874—being a gain of more than 1,000,000 over the year previous; this, with the marked increase in the sales of other numbers, shows that the superior qualities of these Pens are being more and more appreciated, and they are destined to take their place as the most popular Steel Pens in the market. They are made of the best steel, by the most skillful workmen in Europe, and are a nearer approximation to the real Swan Quill action than anything of the kind hitherto invented.

The Spencerian Steel Pens are universally used in the Commercial Colleges throughout the U. S., more largely than any others by the United States Government, and quite generally in the Banks, Counting Houses and Schools of the country; and are for sale by the trade generally.

We claim for the Spencerian, superiority over all other pens in durability, elasticity, flexibility, and in evenness of point.

The Spencerian Pens are comprised in 15 numbers, varying in flexibility and fineness of point, and, for the convenience of those who may wish to try them, we will send a card containing a sample of each number by mail, securely enclosed, on receipt of 25 cents.*

COURAGE.

"He that endureth to the end the same shall be saved."

Toil on brave spirit yet a little longer,
Nor let thy courage falter by the way.
Though all thy hopes may vanish into hunger!
For rest, and peace, thy footsteps may not stay.

Take up thy task, although the soul be weary
And thorns await thy tender, bleeding feet.
Though storm and darkness make the way more dreary,
Yet—look not backward—there is no retreat.

For many burden must the weary spirit
Through all its pathway on this life-time bear,
And many a sorrow does the soul inherit
That must alone—unshared live out its day.

But well we know that trials here are given,
To better fit us for a heavenly home,
Teaching the patient and forgiving spirit
That claims a sweet promise in the life to come.

Then faint not, nor grow weary in endeavor,
But steadfast meet the joyful, waiting smile:
Only to him who to the end endureth
Is promise given of everlasting life.

PORTLAND March 17, 1875.

AUNT CHARLOTTE'S YARN.

"Now, Ida, my dear girl, take my advice," said Aunt Charlotte to her giddy young niece "and don't imperil your own future happiness nor be guilty of injustice by slighting the man to whom you have given your troth, or by foolishly teasing him in order to test his affection. There is many a man who is honored that I have never told you and I could not now bring myself to do so only that I see you don't like me to lecture you, and I wish you to learn wisdom by an easier method than that of bitter experience.

"When I was a young girl we lived, as you know, in Canada, in one of the small lake shore towns between Toronto and Kingston. Your grandfather was a man of note in the town and I was a good deal sought after, was giddy, too, and selfish though I did not then consider myself so. I had many admirers and suitors, among whom the one I liked best was Harry Vane. From my very infancy Harry had been my gallant, and though I sometimes pretended to be, and sometimes really was, jealous of him or otherwise offended, and he the same with regard to me, we always made up again and were better friends than ever. There was not really an engagement between us, though Harry had asked me to form one; but my parents objected to long engagements, and we were not ready to marry. Matters stood thus when, early one spring, we had an addition to our list of beaux in the form of a dashing young man, an Englishman sent out by a wealthy firm of the mother country for the purpose of establishing an agency in their line of business. His headquarters had been in Montreal, but he now announced his intention of making our town his home during the summer.

"He had a good deal of dash, and spent much time in the front part of his house, in promenading the streets with me. I could scarcely set my feet on the sidewalks without encountering him. His name was Bowns, and he claimed to be of aristocratic parentage. He was handsome and affable, though rather supercilious, withal very distinguished in appearance; no wonder the girls of our set vied with each other in their attentions to the obvious of me. Of course I was proud of my conquest, and perhaps carried myself a little haughtily in consequence. For some time Harry pouted, then openly remonstrated, even pleaded, but as I angrily asserted my independence, he finally desisted from all apparent notice of the matter, and whenever we met he treated me with indifferent courtesy, and we fell a good deal apart in our communion which I did not fail to note and admire. Still I must confess that at that time I gave very little thought to Harry or to any of my old admirers. It seems wonderful to me how completely I was fascinated by the prepossessing stranger.

"To be sure, he flattered my vanity not a little, and my empty head was turned by his lavish flatteries and compliments. He enraved about my eyes of heavenly blue, the golden glory of my mermaid locks, my swanlike neck, and an endless flow of pathos that ought to have disgusted me, but did not; and so I listened and he ranted. About the middle of August we made up among our set a picnic party to drive out to Rice Lake Plains, and spend the day in boating on the lake, gathering beechberries, wild flowers, etc., and generally amusing ourselves.

"You must know that there is an irregular chain of small lakes extending transversely from the Bay of Quinte, near the eastern end of Lake Ontario, to the eastern end of Superior. Rice Lake is the first of the chain counting from Ontario, and it lies at a distance of from two to four hours' drive from several small towns on the frontier. We had an early breakfast and set off at 6 o'clock, so that we need not be on the road during the heat of the day. There were several carriages; the one in which I rode was a handsome barouche, hired from a livery stable for the occasion, and by my side sat the all-conquering Mr. Bowns.

"On reaching the lake at the point agreed upon, we separated into little companies, and wandered about at will, but keeping within the vicinity of the camp, until the horn sounded for dinner. We were all, as is usual at picnics, in hungry mood, and we did not dine mincingly.

"After dinner we lolled about on the grass for awhile, then formed plans for the afternoon's campaign. There were near by several canoes or row-boats that were kept for hire, and a fair proportion of our band decided in favor of an excursion on the lake, some parties going in one direction, some in another. The boats would accommodate only four persons each, the rowers and two others. Three boat-loads, twelve individuals, in all, determined to pay a visit to the tower on the opposite shore of the lake, and about three miles further up. As we divided ourselves into parties of four, I felt an irrepressible desire to have Harry Vane, who had declared for the tower, in our boat, so I called out:

"'Harry you are coming with us?' meaning by us, Bowns and myself.

"'I shall never forget the look of mingled pain and pleasure with which he replied, 'No, Charlotte; George is quartered in your boat.'

"It was 3:30 o'clock when we landed near the tower and drew the boat upon the beach. This tower was an octagon building three or four stories in height, consisting of only one room to each story, with a narrow spiral staircase leading from one to summit. At the top was an observatory not much larger than a good-sized bird-cage, which had once been furnished with a small telescope mounted on a swivel, but was now reduced to a very common-place spy-glass. The basement was a deep, dungeon-like hole, with a grated door, through which one entered a subterranean passage leading out to the shore of the lake. This tower, with its lean-to kitchen, or rather cook-house, was built on a hill at the distance of about 200 yards from the water's edge, and it was the product of a Quixotic Englishman, an old bachelor's fancy. The whimsical man did not carry out his original intention of making a complete miniature castle of the feudal times, but suddenly abandoned the enterprise, and went as he came, nobody knew whither. This old little tower had been surrounded on all sides, save the deep bank next the water, by a diminutive moat, which was now a dry ditch, filled with weeds and wild flowers; there, too, was the wreck of a ferry-like drawbridge, and within the inclosure were several quaint-looking garden-chairs cut into the stumps of the trees. There was a family residing in the house, at least they made it an occasional residence during the summer, but that day they were absent, and the garulous old servant in charge showed us over the premises.

"We stole down by the light of a lantern through the underground passage to the opening on the lake; we climbed the steep stairs and peeped through the old spy-glass, sat in the grotesque chairs, and gathered bouquets from the abundant moss. All these vagaries consumed so much time that, before we were aware, the sun was going down the westward slope in a way that, when we noticed it sent us to our boats with speed. We were soon gliding over the water in jovial spirits and at a fair rate of motion toward home. The three boats kept near together, and as we went we sang Tom Moore's Canadian boat-song. Just as our voices were ringing out:

"'Row, brothers, row; for the stream runs fast,
The rapids are near, and the daylight is passed,'

A sudden breeze almost took the light umbrella with which I was screening myself and companion from the sun and which we had left on the bonnets at the camp out of my hand. The breeze subsided for a moment, then came again more vigorously than before, and held on more steadily. Generally or frequently a stiff breeze rises on those lakes about or soon after sunset, but now the sun was certainly half an hour high. Sudden squalls, especially when thunder clouds are hovering near, accompanied by dangerous disturbances of the water, are unpleasantly often the concomitants of hunting on these shallow lakes.

"Looking around the horizon, we discovered the cause of the sudden rising wind. A heavy pile of black clouds coming to befall hind us in the northwest were spreading themselves along the northern horizon and extending upward almost to the zenith, and at the same time we began to hear the thunder mutter, and see the lightning play, though not very near. The weather-wise ones of our party said the shower was spending itself north of us, but we might get a sprinkling from its skirts, and the wind was sure to be troublesome.

"Meanwhile we had crossed the lake and were wending our way down to the landing adjoining which was our camp, keeping close in shore to avoid the commotion of the water.

"There is a peculiarity in that lake. The wild rice which it takes its name, grows over almost the entire bottom of the basin, and when at its tallest the grain lies floating on the surface of the water, and the Indians, when it is ripe, paddle round and gather it into their canoes. This, however, is the less fatigation to ordinary rowers rather for pleasure, and where the basin is particularly shallow, or when the waters are agitated by storms, the passage is perilous.

"I soon perceived that Bowns and George Law were by no means masters of the situation; and oh, how it longed for the tried and trusty arm of Harry Vane to steer our giddy little skiff. Just then Harry, who was ahead, called out to us to make for an islet, a little way out in the lake, on one side of which there was a small, safe, and which had been used by the Indians as a landing place, as it sloped gradually into the water. He said we had better land there and wait for the squall to pass over.

"The rowers turned the boat toward the islet and pushed out vigorously. I remember holding the umbrella low that I might see better over my own and Miss Morton's head, for the rain was raining. Again Harry called to us to shut down the umbrella; lest it should catch the wind and upset our skiff; and the next moment Bowns, who had not said a word to us, girls since the wind sprang up, snapped out, 'Yes, certainly down with that umbrella.'

"What with a sense of danger, and what with sudden consternation at being spoken to in such a tone and manner, I had no self-command, and, in shutting the umbrella, I somehow lost my balance, and the next instant I was sinking in the blinding waters.

"I must have risen very quickly, for the boat was there, and I had my hand on its side, but quick as a flash Bowns's hand came down on mine, and, though I distinctly said that I was drowning, he only laid my hand the more firmly on the boat, and refused to assist me. I know that; he disengaged my hand. True, I should have upset the boat and lost us two, he flung me off to perish. And so I sank again, even through the gurgling in my ears, I heard the voice of Harry Vane, 'Courage, Charlotte, I'm coming.'

"Again I rose, and again sank. Then I ceased to struggle and the pain of suffocation was gone. I knew that I was dying, and like electricity all my past life flashed before me. I had no terror of death, but I longed to ask Harry's pardon. Bowns had seemed to have forgotten. The tall rice was all about me, and I knew no more until in deadly sickness and pain would me to consciousness by human speech that rumbled in my ears? I did not know; I did not care; I only wished not to be disturbed—not to suffer.

"Slowly my comprehension returned, and I found myself on a bed in the log-cabin of the man who kept the boats on hire, and it was night, for candles were burning. Some of my companions of the island were there, but I was too ill and weary to ask questions.

"When next I opened my eyes it was daylight and my father and mother were bending over me.

"Suddenly I remembered something of the drowning and I cried out, 'Where is Harry? He said he was coming.'

"They hushed and soothed me, and I suppose administered a narcotic, for I relapsed into a faint recollected nothing, and had a second consciousness and of being annoyed by the jolting.

"The next time I awoke my mind was clear; I recollected all, and begged to be told how I was saved. My friends evaded this question, and, my suspicions being aroused, I demanded to see Harry Vane. Finding they could no longer put me off, they told me that Harry rescued me and swam with me towards the island, where one of the boats had just landed. Another gentleman waded out breast high to meet him, and drew me to the shore, supposing that Harry was following. But Harry did not follow, and in the excitement about me he was not missed until too late. Whether he was exhausted or whether he took a cramp, no one could tell. This only I know and never shall forget; Harry Vane was drowned in the same lake in which I was saved.

"I shall live and die, Charlotte Kemp. As for Bowns, I hated him, I hate still, the sound of his name. He left our town almost immediately after the occurrence, and I never saw his face after the day of the picnic."

The latest telegraphic quotations from the Liverpool wheat market are for the 17th, and give the prevailing price at 8s 11d @ 9s 3d for average California, and 9s 3d @ 9s 10d for club per central. Latest London advices, however, indicate an advance of 1@2s per quarter in most European markets, induced by the backwardness of the season.

The heavy drain on the financial resources of the Pacific coast has got abated but little of its volume, and reaching as far as it has into the spring season, it is claimed will bring about a very close market here if it does not produce an actual scarcity. But as the case is passing its debts and the heavy shipments of specie from New York to Europe have in a great measure been checked, we look for the time to come when exchange will be much more in our favor than it is now.

The loanable funds in this market are still reported as quite ample to supply the current demand, and borrowers find but little difficulty in securing accommodations at the usual rates, either on prime commercial paper or other approved securities. General tradesmen or merchants are as a rule not making many or urgent calls for monetary favors, though exceptions are found of those who have imported heavily of stocks for the spring trade, hoping to reap returns in 60 or 90 days, by which they will be able to liquidate with the banks and come out with at least living profits. Their future depends much on the activity in business to rule during the two or three months just ahead, and that prospect is generally considered to be at least as fair as average.

The dry goods market has been much more active during the past week than before since the first of the year, and some large orders have been filled. Woolen fabrics and silks are quite low as usual, with a reduction in some leading lines, while cotton fabrics are firm and prices not at all inclined to decline.

Groceries are in full demand and interior merchants are making up spring stocks largely from this market. Quotations as noted below are well sustained with rare exceptions: Coffee is duller and heavy stocks in the country, with other circumstances, have given prices a downward movement of 2@2½ cents per pound. Sugars show but little change from the recent regulations imposed by law upon the trade, which releases the duty on imports from the Sandwich Islands, whence a large portion of the supplies for the Pacific Coast are derived. The action of the San Francisco refineries in trying to get, almost, or truly, the control of the trade in Hawaiian sugars, will render the treaty as ratified with that country, almost a nullity, and the people here will reap no advantage from it. While there were many arguments in favor of the treaty, there were some against it, the strongest of which, perhaps, was its injustice to refiners and importers at the East, and the disadvantage at which it places those on our coast who are engaged in the same kind of trade, with other portions of the world than the Sandwich Islands. The trade with Manila, in sugars, has by no means been an unimportant branch of business on the coast, and it cannot but be very materially depressed by this invidious distinction which, we understand, the treaty makes.

Wheat and Tonnage.

Notwithstanding the fact that some excitement in the wheat market here has been noted during the past three or four days, we can feel no assurance that any permanent advance will be the result. The present and prospective supply of tonnage is more than large enough to be considered sufficient to carry the grain which can be purchased in this State, unless shippers find that they can pay more than present current rates. Since the beginning of the harvest year the shipments from Oregon have been not over 70,000 tons, including all heavy in vessels not finished loading, reckoning the flour exports so much wheat. The Farmer estimates that there now remains in Oregon of last year's crop 25,000 tons, or 800,000 bushels. While there may be that quantity, it is hardly probable that under present circumstances, more than one-half and probably not over two-fifths of it could be obtained at rates which would be considered safe by shippers. If, as is estimated, 10,000 tons of the crop of 1873-4 was carried over, it is likely (providing there is not an important advance in rates) that fully 15,000 tons of the current year's crop will remain on hand at the close of the season. Vessels would have been here to load the entire surplus and shippers and producers agreed as to prices, but such has been the state of the market, both in California and Oregon that many ships are leaving this part of the coast in ballast, while a very large amount of wheat remains unshipped. Our latest San Francisco exchanges inform us that the accumulation of tonnage at that port has ceased, and more vessels are going than are coming. We have no reason to fear that tonnage will be sufficient to carry all that can be purchased before harvest, but present prospects do not indicate plentiful and cheap freights for the growing crop.

Shipping Intelligence.

The bark Menshikoff is loading with lumber at Flanders' wharf.

The schooner Hera is receiving a cargo of wheat at this port for San Francisco.

The British bark Arnaco, loaded with iron from Middlesboro, England, and consigned to Rodgers, Meyer & Co., is in the river and will probably reach this port to-morrow.

The steamship Idaho, due from San Francisco, had not been telegraphed up to a late hour this evening.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—Arrived—Bark Oregon, Seabeck; steamers Empire and Eastport, Coos Bay; bark Forest Queen, Port Ludlow; schooner James Town send, Coos Bay; bark Theodore, Port Ludlow; bkn Melancthon, Coos Bay; schooner Alice, Port Gamble.

Sailed—Ship Pactolus, Astoria; ship Kirkwood, Liverpool.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The little excitement noticed during the past three days is still kept up, and though it has resulted in more talk among dealers than anything else, a few transactions are reported as occurring to-day at $1 37½@1 40 per cental, the latter figure being the highest quotation obtainable.

OATS—We have no means of knowing the surplus of this cereal in our State, but are of the opinion that it would be found quite large were prices put up to a figure which would induce holders to "shove down." At present there is a fair demand in this market at 45@48c per bushel, with but few offering. They are reported to be selling for more in Albany than buyers are here, and appearances indicate that some body is getting up a "corner."

FLOUR—The market has undergone no important change since our last weekly review, the supply being only moderate and holders firm in demanding full quotations of $4 25@4 50 ₱ barrel for jobbing lots of standard extras; $4 for good outside and country brands, and $3 75@3 87½ for superfine.

BARLEY—The demand is fair for local consumption but receipts very light. Quotable nominally as last week at $1 25 ₱ hundred lbs for good feed and $1 35@1 40 for choice brewing.

MILL FEED—There is an apparent improvement in the demand and trade is active at $25@27 50 per ton for middlings; bran, $12@13; chops, $20@27 50; shorts, $23 @ cash; $25 @ 4 months.

HAY—There has been a slight decline and jobbers are paying $16@18 for good to choice timothy, selling at $18@20 per ton.

POTATOES—There is a fair demand for good lots for shipment at 72½@75c per bushel, the range of quotations being 70@90c.

ONIONS—A more active movement has taken place during the week, the common sort quotable for jobbing are at 2@2½ for 100 lbs for best varieties.

APPLES RIPE—Notwithstanding the fear that the late cold spell destroyed the fruiting properties have been free, and since the ice gave way shipments have been fully 4,000 boxes. Choice lots assorted and neatly packed command $2 per box; loose from common to choice 40@60c.

APPLES DRIED—There is the usual demand at low rates: 4@5c ₱ lb in sacks, 5@6c in kegs.

BACON—The supply continues rather in excess of the current demand and sales are dull. Sides are quotable at 11@12c ₱ lb; hams, 14@15c; shoulders, 9@10c.

LARD—There is more distinction between kegs and tubs, quotable in the former at 10@11c, and in the latter at 11c.

BUTTER—Prices are nearly as last given, with a downward tendency, and quotations must be according to quality. Choice dairy is in brisk demand. Common is more plentiful.

EGGS—The market is in more liberal supply to-day and quotations are down to 15 cents per dozen.

CHICKENS—Choice lots of fair grown are worth $4 50 ₱ dozen; common and mixed $3 50@4.

DRESSED HOGS—The packing season having closed, the only demand is for the home trade and is not brisk at 6@6½c ₱ lb.

BEEF CATTLE—There have been but few arrivals of choice lots during the past week and for such prices have advanced to 5 cts @ 5½ net on foot; ordinary quotable at 5@5½c.

MUTTON SHEEP—There are very few lots offering, and choice are worth $3 25@3 75 ₱ head, and some at the extreme of $4.

HIDES AND FURS—A duller demand for shipping purposes prevails and receipts are light. We quote for choice dry 16@16½c ₱ lb; green salted, 7c; green, 4@5c; calf, 12@15c ₱ lb; deer, 15@30c each; $1@1 50; otter, $2@5; beaver, $5@6 50.

WOOL—Very few transactions are taking place; best grades quotable at 26@22c ₱ lb; common to fair lots, 16@18c.
